Editorial

We are presenting you with another issue of Perspectives on Culture. The current issue of our quarterly is related to a multifaceted cultural and historical reflection on the presence of costume in culture over the centuries, to which topic a thematic section has been devoted. The editing work was undertaken by Professors: Beata Bigaj-Zwonek, Izabela Kaczmarzyk and Monika Stankiewicz-Kopec of the Institute of Cultural Studies and Journalism at the Ignatianum University in Cracow. The topic proved to be extremely popular and aroused great interest, hence the section itself, as well as the entire issue, is the most extensive one in the journal's several-year history.

The issue you are reviewing is rich in content, which is not just about the number of texts, but also their thematic diversity. It contains 41 texts, 24 of which are within the thematic section, and the rest fall under the regular sections of the magazine: Management and Marketing and Varia. There are also four texts in the Reviews (2) and Reports (2) sections.

We hope you will find this issue interesting. We wish you a pleasant and useful reading.
