From the Editors

The current issue of our quarterly is special for at least four organizational and administrative reasons. Firstly, the Ignatianum Academy in Cracow has become a university and as of October 1, 2023, its new name is Ignatianum University in Cracow. Secondly, the Editors, moving with the times, are focusing on the online formula, reducing the circulation of the paper version significantly, and providing widely open access to the journal through the Open Journal Systems platform. Thirdly, by the decision of the Minister of Education and Science announced in the Communiqué of July 17, 2023, regarding the list of academic journals and peer-reviewed materials from international conferences, the journal received 140 points. Finally, fourthly, the list of the parameterized disciplines that the journal covers, namely 1) cultural and religious studies, 2) literary studies, 3) history, and 4) management and quality sciences has been expanded to include other disciplines, such as 5) ethnology and cultural anthropology, 6) philosophy, 7) linguistics, 8) art sciences, 9) Polish studies, 10) political and administrative sciences, 11) social communication and media sciences, and 12) education studies.

This issue deals with the current question of the coexistence of humankind and the development of technology, where human presence is no longer limited to the real world. Two dimensions – the real world and the virtual world – have become mutually penetrating and complementary spaces. The person responsible for collecting and editing articles on these issues was Sylwia Jaskuła, Ph.D., professor at the Łomża Academy, dean of the Łomża Faculty of Social Sciences and Humanities.

The issue you are viewing online addresses a wealth of compelling questions. It contains 29 texts, 12 of which constitute the thematic section, and the rest fall under the regular sections: “Management and Marketing,” “Cyber Culture Spaces” and “Varia.”

We hope you will find this issue of interest, and that the articles will make for enjoyable and informative reading!
